upon and responded with a pleasant address.

Colonel Fuqua expressed himself as delighted with the eloquent addresses which had preceded, and thanked the president for the honor and recognition accorded him by the request to speak. He gave Albuquerque an especially favorable send-off in speaking of her hospitality. "Your welcome and handshakes would warm almost the heart of a dead man," he said.

He followed up the idea of Mayor Lea regarding love of country, and told that he was less fortunate in that he had only one son. "But if his country needs him more than I do, I would wish a crushed heart give him to his country and him who gave him life, believing that they would handle him and use him better than I," he said.

He stated that the people of Panhandle were delighted to be guests of Albuquerque and that her joys, her happiness, and even her sorrows, are shared by them.

He sounded a note of warning to the members of the association, urging them to overlook petty grievances and to work for the advancement and betterment of the association. "We want all your suggestions and assistance. We ask every member of the association to bear a part; everyone has a duty."

Administration Scores Victory In House Action On Armed Ships

Test Vote Shows Strength of President's Supporters and Puts McLemore Resolution Up for a Vote.

EVERY INDICATION DRAFT WILL BE TABLED

Lower Chamber Turns to Debate on Measure Itself. All Opportunities for Amendment Being Removed.

(By Evening Herald Special Wire)

Washington, March 7.—President Wilson's stand that congress shall not advise Americans to abandon their rights to travel the seas on merchant ships armed for defensive purposes in accordance with international law was endorsed in the house today in two heavy test votes on the McLemore resolution.

By substantial majorities the administration forces defeated attempts to amend the resolution to the liking of the president's opponents and can it squarely before the house without amendment for a vote under a special rule at the end of four hours' debate.

About 6 o'clock this evening, the administration forces will move to adopt the McLemore resolution and the heavy votes they polled in the two preliminary tests indicate that they will kill it by a substantial majority.

Once tabled, the resolution will have gone the way of the bare resolution in the senate and a majority of senators will have been placed on record before the world as demonstrating that it does not endorse the dissensions against the president's foreign policy.

With the agitation finally disposed of, the president and Secretary Lansing will resume the submarine negotiations with Germany.

In quick succession today the house rejected the proposal to allow anti-administration amendments to the McLemore resolution and then adopted the special rule for consideration of the resolution itself, routing the opposition by votes of 256 to 169 and 271 to 138, respectively.

Immediately after the adoption of the rule, debate began on the resolution itself. Chairman Flood of the foreign affairs committee moved to adjourn the information bureau, near the railroad station.

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. A. B. McMillen will sweep her home at 141 South Water street, open to the visitors. A reception will be held early in the evening the guests may witness it and later attend the second performance at the theater. Tickets for this party may be secured at the information bureau, near the railroad station.

The response to the address of welcome was made by Mayor Tom Lea of El Paso.

"I was tucked in a car with Billy Annest last night," said Mayor Lea, "and he talked to me all night about his race for the secretaryship. We come here with all kindness and are enjoying the generous hospitality of our city. I am not a cattlemen, but handle the 'bull' in El Paso."

Mr. Lea mentioned the tragedy in El Paso yesterday when several persons were burned to death, and said that the hatred of the delegation from that city were swept down by it. "But such is life," said Mr. Lea. "Our country is enjoying peace, and may it ever last. I believe in peace with honor, and I believe that the stockmen of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona are of the same opinion. When I saw this great gathering of cattlemen rise to the strains of our national song, I felt proud to be an American to be from the plains of the southwest, to be kissed by the sunshine and breeze of the southwest. I was born in Missouri and came to the southwest and I am glad to say that my two little sons are native born Texans. If the time should ever come, I should tell them to go forth for the country's honor."

He said that El Paso is now Albuquerque's guest, and that El Paso is always glad to be Albuquerque's host. He stated that he realized that this section of the country is the real home of the stockmen. He pointed out the merits of El Paso, her position, her wide-awake boosters, men who believe in the future, her energy industry and lastly her future.

According to the by-laws of the association constitution, two committees were to be appointed by the president at the beginning of the convention. As a committee on resolutions President Nations named L. C. Britt of Marfa, Tex., chairman; Alexander Wilson, El Paso, and Robert Moody, Canadian. The second committee, on by-laws, as announced by the president, is E. H. Braund, Canadian, chairman; A. B. McMillen, Albuquerque, and Tom Love, Sierra Blanca.

The regular routine of business required less than an hour, and President Nations announced that talk by members of the association would be in order. Colonel Fuqua was called

An informal was held in the Commercial club last evening, and a large number of the visitors were present. The reception was held for the purpose of getting acquainted with the visiting ladies, and this was accomplished admirably.

This evening the visiting ladies will be guests of the ladies' entertainment committee at a theater.

The rule providing for four hours' debate on the motion to table the McLemore resolution was adopted by 271 to 138. One man was present.

With this action the administration forces scored another victory and placed the McLemore resolution before the house for debate and a vote without amendment. The administration leaders said there was no doubt the two previous votes showed that the two offices for which they had run were too close to be decided by a single vote.

The text of the McLemore resolution, following a lengthy preamble, is as follows:

"Resolved, that the house of representatives of the sixty-third congress of the United States do, and hereby solemnly does, request the president to warn all American citizens, within the borders of the United States or its possessions or elsewhere to refrain from traveling on any and all ships of any and all of the powers now or in future at war, which ship or ships shall mount guns, whether such ship or ships are frankly avowed or not, the naval forces of the power whose flag it flies or shall be called a merchant ship or otherwise and whether such gun or guns or other armament be called offensive or defensive."

The question is, "Is this rule dictated?" does not Representative Harrison, Democratic of Missouri, put it? and his supporters are as enthusiastic about this as those of Colonel Britt. Strange to say supporters of both give Mr. Plato's claims much more consideration than they do of their fellow townsmen.

A new factor injected into the presidential situation yesterday was the action of the executive committee in deciding to recommend to consideration the convention a repeal of the by-law which prohibits the succession of any officer in the same office a second year.

Friends of J. H. Nations, now president of the association, see in this an endorsement of his administration and yesterday started a boom for his reelection. Mr. Nations is said to have made a brief and eloquent speech, thanking the committee for this endorsement.

On the other hand, his opponents declare the proposed amendment is perfectly general and that several members of the committee who would not support Mr. Nations for reelection voted for it.

"I consider it a great honor that my friends want to re-elect me as president of this association," said Mr. Nations today.
